2022 Annual Report

From the Director

I'm thrilled to say in 2022 the Institute will return to its pre-pandemic, hybrid calendar of in-person and online events. Over the year and ahead, we will hold dozens of board meetings in Australia, Israel and the United States, and we look forward to the return of our much-loved, in-person events.

Our annual Women in Marketing Science Conference will be back, bigger than ever. Our Ehrenberg-Bass Institute Summer School will be back, more content-packed for attendees than ever. And, after the sharing of studies and ideas, we will celebrate the Institute's 20th birthday with fanfare for pioneering, empirically grounded (and sometimes provocative) discoveries and real-world impact.

We look forward to hearing about your own discoveries and ideas, and to seeing you in person.

Professor Byron Sharp
Director, Ehrenberg-Bass Institute

2022 Awards and Accolades

Congratulations to our amazing team members and friends for their achievements in 2022.

Outstanding scholarship's effect on marketing practice Jenni Romaniuk was awarded the Australian Marketing Institute's Outstanding Contribution to Marketing Award.

Global Marketing Hall of Fame Byron Sharp was inducted into the Hall of Fame by the Chartered Institute of Marketing (CIM) in 2021.

New to your bookshelf

As followers be sure, Professor Jenni Romaniuk has released her new book, How Brands Grow Part II: 5 More Ideas to Grow More. It's packed with insights and practical advice on how to implement the ideas that have made our audiences come back for more. Find out more about the book and how to order it at marketingbooks.com.

Jodie Kennedy has released her first book, Mindfully Marketing. In it, she shares her journey from being a practitioner to an academic researcher, and how she has applied mindfulness to her own life and career. Jodie's book is available now from marketingbooks.com.

Award-winning Industry Relevance

The Institute's research, Earnest Kills Brands, was awarded the Australian Market and Social Research Society Industry Relevance Award for being "the most relevant piece of research to industry" and "the most likely to attract media/public attention" at the Australian Market and Social Research Society Conference.

We welcomed new sponsors from Australia, the United States, Hong Kong, and the United Arab Emirates, including Mondelēz, Kantar, Nielsen, Coca-Cola, Google, Unilever, Procter & Gamble, Lion, Mars, Woolworths Australia, Bidfood, Johnson & Johnson, Ford, Bayer, Pfizer, Diageo, Heineken, Asahi, Suntory, Kirin, Carlsberg, Coca-Cola Amatil, and Asahi Beverages, across multiple regions.

Deep Dive into Category Growth

Category Entry Point (CEP) data on the rise, fall and stability of brands' CEPs is now available for all category entry point (CEP) studies. Our CEP analyses invite quick learning about how brands grow by attracting buyers in new ways. Our CEP data is available to purchase by specific countries or combined sets via marketingbooks.com.

Research product spotlight: Category Entry Points

Category Entry Points (CEPs) are the cues that customers use to enter the buying process. Our CEP analyses invite quick learning about how brands grow by attracting buyers in new ways. Our CEP data is available to purchase by specific countries or combined sets via marketingbooks.com.

Ilsuyvanna: Distinctive Brand Assets in action

Our study by Jenni Romaniuk has been published in the Journal of Advertising Research. The study tested the impact of distinctive brand assets in increasing consumer attention to brand communications. Distinctive brand assets were found to be more attention-drawing than non-distinctive assets. Standing out from competitors matters.

17 new sponsors, and 2 membership expansions

149 seminars

In 2022 our team of Marketing Scientists delivered 149 seminars to a total audience of 5,000 people. Seminars were delivered via 109 seminars in-person, with 40 of these also streamed online to remote attendees. 40 seminars were delivered online only. Our most popular topic, both by new sponsors and overall, was Category Entry Points, which is a new approach to segmenting customers to attack their knowledge. Most seminars were free, but we also delivered paid seminars and short-courses, including "Advanced Brand Metrics".

1 PhD, 5 masters

Institute research is highly regarded by our alumni who continue to excel in their careers or to be published in a set of leading academic journals. We are proud to have our students with many of the world's leading companies and to have prestigious forms of serving at some of the highest ethical levels.
